

Incentive search. Simplified

Going green has gone from being a luxury option to a necessity for the U.S. built environment. State and local governments are mandating green building standards to cut carbon emissions and stimulate their economies. Companies are shifting from being a strong advocate of green real estate to implementing sweeping corporate, social, and environmental responsibility goals across portfolios and design standards. And, it's not just developers embracing green real estate, tenants are driving demand too.

As the nation's go-to database for commercial real estate and home improvement incentives, IncentiFind can connect any property to cost-saving incentives using a property address.

Leverage our APIs or suite of products on our web-platform to connect any home improvement project or commercial new construction, retrofit, or capital improvement project to cost-savings incentives.

We're transforming the built environment to be more sustainable through incentives.

ABOUT INCENTIFIND

We are the nation's go-to database for commercial real estate and home improvement and incentives. We simplify the search for incentives into three-easy-steps: 1 find incentives, 2 verify eligibility, and 3 apply to incentives. From home improvement projects to ground-up commercial real estate developments, our process makes it simple to connect to the $70B in incentive dollars offered each year.

Our database boasts over 520,000 incentives. We house incentives across all fifty states and from five levels of government: federal, state, county, city, and utility level governments. In our database you will find tax incentives, grant programs, rebates, fee waivers, free assessments, bill credits, and many other types of incentives that promote a wide range of green measures (such as economic development, energy efficiency, water conservation, renewables, electric vehicles, historic reuse, and more).

Our APIs and web-platform products make verifying eligibility easy and our web-platform dashboards provide a single place to track your cost-saving incentives on every project.
